College of Business

From The Director

Hi Everyone!

I hope your holidays were as good as mine were: lots of sleeping in, shopping, decorating, spending time with friends and family. Now it's back to work! I've personally decided to leave our Christmas tree up for a few weeks. It cheers us up during the dismal winter weeks after New Years, and reminds us to stay in the Christmas spirit! I figure if other people can start their Christmas shopping on Labor Day weekend, I can leave my tree up until Lent begins! Maybe I'll start something!

I hope you've all submitted your bios to Christy by now.....if not, you should have. I'll be following up this week. This quarter I need to see every junior for an academic check-up, and every senior to contract for graduation. Please get on my schedule if you haven't already met with me.

For those of you who are, or were, named scholars, this would be a good time to touch base with your donor/sponsor. A note updating them on your progress would be appreciated, and Donna has contact information if you're not sure where to send it.

On the whole, I was very happy with the grade reports for all of you. We had LOTS of 4.0's, and you continue to prove that you are the cream of the crop. I'm proud of you....keep up the good work.

Recruiting for next year's class is in full swing, with interviews starting soon. Let Christy or Greg know if you can help us out with meeting and talking to prospective students. We could use some help with the interviews, and with following up afterwards.

Good luck this quarter, and keep in touch with us.

Jeri

Watch in February for the Lindner Honors-PLUS Newsletter to be published on the College of Business website. You will be able to view it at any time by going to:

<http://www.business.uc.edu/?/programs/undergrad/honorsplus>

Just click the link above, and you will find the current issue, plus past archived issues, starting in February. This should not only make it easier for everyone to view, but will also make them available for anyone visiting our webpage to read what is currently going on with the program.

Important Reminder: Don't forget to update Judy Magazine on any co-op changes you have. She needs these changes as they occur! Email her at judy.magazine@uc.edu or call her at 556-7187.

We are currently working on picture directories for each Lindner Honors-PLUS class. In order to complete this task we need to get current photos of each student. If you did not have your picture taken during autumn quarter, please stop in and see Donna on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday to get yours taken. Once all pictures have been taken she will compile the photo directories and each student will receive a complete set of directories for all students in the program. We hope this will help you in recognizing fellow students who may not be in your class, but are students in this unique and wonderful program.

College Nite at the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra is Fri., Jan., 16th, with music director Paavo Jarvi. Join fellow students for a great concert at 8:00pm with music by Bruch, Bruckner, and Veljo Tormis, with violinist Hilary Hahn. Stay for the PARTY afterward in the Ballroom, with FREE FOOD and soft drinks, live music by the John Zappy Trio, and prizes. Concert + PARTY, all for $10.00. Call 513-744-3590 for tickets.

Alumni Corner

Andy Craig, Class of '02, was recently promoted to Assistant Vice President at Peoples Community Bank. Andy says that becoming one of the area's youngest executives had been a goal of his since graduating from the inaugural class of the Lindner Honors-PLUS program, and although many people thought it was an impossible goal (including himself at times), he worked extremely hard and is now reaping the benefits of that labor. Andy stated that Peoples Community Bank is a wonderful company with great opportunities and he's extremely excited about what lies ahead in his future there.

We can say without hesitation that we can all expect great things from Andy in the future. Please celebrate this well-deserved promotion with him.

Reminder: Priority web-registration for spring quarter begins on Monday, January 26th, and ends on Sunday, February 8th. Make sure to register during priority!
